Hanover man, North Vernon woman die in crash

BY THE COURIER STAFF

A Hanover man and a North Vernon woman who was a passenger in his vehicle were both killed in a head-on collision on State Road 3 near County Road 25 East Thursday morning in Jennings County.

Jennings County's Sheriff Officers responded to the scene at about 6:43 a.m. and an initial investigation by Deputy Kyle Lee determined that a 1994 Ford Ranger pickup truck driven by Joseph Simmonds, 47, of Hanover, was southbound on State Road 3 when for unknown reasons the vehicle traveled left of center striking a 2017 Buick Enclave driven by Linda Howell, 61, of Lexington.

The pickup then caught fire as a result of the crash while a witness was able to pull Howell from her vehicle.

Simmonds and the passenger in his truck, Elizabeth Colleen Kiste-Beeman, 47, of North Vernon, were fatally injured and both were pronounced dead at the scene by the Jennings County Coroner's Office.

Howell sustained serious injuries and was transported by air ambulance to an area hospital where she is currently being treated.

According to an obituary on Page A3 of today's edition, Simmonds is a graduate of Southwestern High School and most recently worked at Arvin Sango and Madison Precision in Madison. A memorial service for Beeman was held on Monday at The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints in North Vernon.

Jennings County Sheriff's Office was assisted by Indiana State Police-Versailles Post Crash Reconstruction Team, Jennings County EMS, Vernon Township Volunteer Fire Department, North Vernon Fire Department, Jennings County Emergency Dispatch, North Vernon Police Department and the Jennings County Coroner's Office.

Delayed dedication

County unveils it's state-of-the-art Public Safety Center

BY BOB DEMAREE

Jefferson County is better prepared for whatever natural disasters or emergency situations residents encounter in the future thanks to a state-of-the-art operations facility at the Jefferson County Public Safety Center at 620 Green Road on Madison's hilltop.

The center actually opened in February of 2020, but one of those emergencies — the COVID-19 pandemic — delayed holding a dedication ceremony until Saturday. However, the new high-tech command and communications center has been in use for more than a year, battle-tested as command center for the pandemic, snow emergencies, floods and numerous other events where having the county's Emergency Management Agency and 911 operations under one roof — as well as room for other stakeholders involved in the response — is an asset and perhaps a life saver.

"This is a tremendous thing," said Troy Morgan, director of Jefferson County Emergency Management Agency. "I am proud of what we have."

Susie Lawrence, 911 Executive Director, said the building is "exactly what we had in mind. It ensures we are available in a time of need."

The facility was developed after it was determined that a larger space was needed for 911, which had been located in a tiny room at the old jail downtown. The fact that EMA did not have a permanent location and was working out of the Jefferson County Health Department as an alternate location, also put the county at risk of losing funding through Homeland Security.

County Commissioners were looking for locations when Morgan suggested the possibility of the former Work One Southeast building on Green Road. "All the rest is history," said Commissioner Bobby Little, because that's exactly where it's now located. "Look at what happened," Little said. "Now, we have a state-of-the-art facility."

"Most of the counties in the state don't have what you have. This is truly state-of-the-art. It is important to have a safe area for

'Very good progress' being made, deputy mayor says

BY BOB DEMAREE

Work on Madison's Main Street rehabilitation project began at 7 a.m. Monday, and just a few hours later Deputy Mayor Mindy McGee reported to members of the Board of Public Works and Safety that "very good progress" is being made.

The project is being tackled in three phases beginning with the paved area from Jefferson Street to the incline bridge (over the railroad tracks) on the north side of the Main Street, then back on the south side to Jefferson Street. The next phase will be from the incline bridge to the Big Clifty Creek bridge near the Indiana Kentucky Electric Corporation on the north side,

Decision on drinking water grant delayed

BY BOB DEMAREE

The City of Madison is waiting to hear back on funding that will assist with a drinking water infrastructure improvement project.

At Monday's meeting of the Board of Public Works and Safety, Mayor Bob Courtney said the city won't know if it will receive a State Water Infrastructure Fund (SWIF) grant for the Indiana Finance Authority (IFA) until Aug. 27 after an answer was previously anticipated sooner. The city is also waiting for an answer on a request before the Jefferson County Commissioners to contribute $2.5 million in American Rescue Act funds toward the drinking water infrastructure project.

"Every dollar that can be put into it will correlate to water rates," said Courtney, noting that water rate increases could be tied to how much debt service the city incurs on the project.

Courtney has also asked County Commissioners to contributed $425,000 toward an Army Corps of Engineers (ACOE) study to develop a comprehensive plan on flood mitigation in Jefferson County, particularly related the June 18 flash flooding that significantly impacted North Walnut Street and other areas of the city and county.

"We are focused on the future," Courtney said, noting that minimizing damage from future flash flooding will involve likely involve more infrastructure.

In other business:

• Approved a resolution to provide access easement for property at 109 East Fifth Street, owned by Cottage Green LLC, that will allow for landscaping around the property. Judy Koehler, representing Cottage Green, said the property is surrounded by what was once parking for King's Daughters' Hospital.

"This makes common sense," said board member Karl Eaglin, who commended the work that has been done on the property.

• Approved a request from Sam Sloffer on behalf of Southeastern Indiana Woodturners to close Potter's Alley running north and south between Main Street and the alley running east and west between Poplar Street and Broadways Street on the south side of Main Street from 8 a.m. on Saturday, Sept. 25 through 5 p.m. on Sunday, Sept. 26 for a Woodturning Art Show on the same weekend as the Madison Chautauqua Festival of Art.

• Approved two PACE extensions — one a two-month extension until Oct. 31 for Charles Requet, 135 East Main Street, and the other to Aug. 12 for Derek Hughes, 411 Jefferson Street. Each project had received $7,500 through PACE. Courtney also asked Nicole Schnell, the city's director of planning, about the pink color being used on the building. "I know we don't regulate paint color, but I would like them to reconsider," Courtney said, noting "it's very much out of character for the historic district."

• Approved a water adjustment of $2,375.79 for the Greens of Madison Apartments and Town Homes for property at 2227 Michigan Road. Property manager Damon Callis said an ongoing leak was now discovered until a water puddle appeared. "We believe the leak went on for several months," said Callis, but "it was hard to discover because it was underground." Once the ground was fully saturatewd, he said the puddle made them aware of the issue, which they have since repaired.

• Approved a water adjustment of $3,444.69 for Fit for the King, 2617 Wilson Avenue. Owner J.D. Traylor reported that a leaking water pipe was discovered during the winter, but repair was delayed after two companies declined the job due to specialized equipment needed because of a nearby major gas main and fiber optic lines. Sedam Contracting was eventually hired to repair the leak.

• Paul Lee, 1033 West Main Street, attended with concerns about work that he alleges is being done at 1037 West Main Street without proper permitting and is causing damage to other nearby properties. "This is something that needs to be addressed," Lee said.

Courtney said the city will work with its city on a resolution.

Let Us Pause To Honor The Memory Of

Mr. Weston Lee "Wes" Ellis

Mr. Weston Lee "Wes" Ellis, age 39, of Bennington, Indiana, tragically passed away on Saturday, July 24th, 2021. Beloved son of Donald L. Ellis, Jr. and Melanie R. Ellis Demaree, he was born in July, 1982. Wes was raised and attended school in the Madison community, and graduated from Madison Consolidated High School in 2000. While there, he played football, and was an accomplished student and member of National Honor Society. Following high school, Wes served in the United States Marine Corps, and excelled in marksmanship as a sharpshooter. After his Marine service, he pursued an education in Geology, graduating from Southern Indiana University in Evansville with a B.S. in Geology in 2011. He then entered a graduate program in geology at California State University, Long Beach, and received a Master's Degree with Honors. While pursuing his education and in summers, Wes worked as a US Forestry Technician in Michigan, a Hydrological Technician with the Bureau of Land Management in Montana, a Graduate Assistant with the National Science Foundation in Kauai, Hawaii, and a Geology Research Assistant at Cal State Long Beach. In addition to authoring or co-authoring publications in geology, Wes was honored with several academic and scholastic awards as an undergraduate and graduate student. Following graduation, Weston worked as a Senior Staff Geologist for Kennedy Jenks Consultants in Irvine, CA until December 2019. In this position, he was a valued consultant on numerous environmental projects, and traveled extensively in the US and Puerto Rico. He held professional memberships in the Geological Society of America, Indiana Academy of Science, American Geophysical Union, and the Groundwater Resources Association of California. Wes returned to Indiana during the COVID pandemic to assist with the family farm and to help his grandmother and family. He recently accepted a position as an Environmental Specialist with North American Stainless, and was to begin that position on July 26th. From a young age, Wes had a strong affinity for the outdoors and nature. This was expressed in his numerous interests and boundless energy for hiking, camping, biking, fishing, kayaking, beekeeping, gardening, farm activities and studying and communing with nature in all its forms. Wes loved exploring National Parks, especially Yellowstone and Yosemite, and traveling internationally, discovering new foods and cultures. From these experiences, he developed his skills as an amateur chef and baker (as all those who tasted his bread can attest). He was close with his late grandfather, Donald Ellis, Sr., and followed his interest in competing with the National Muzzleloader's Association shoots in Friendship, Indiana. He was proud of the marksmanship awards he won, and treasured that time with his grandfather. Wes especially loved spending time with his mom, and also his sister and her children, who he considered as his own. He was a devoted and loving family member and friend to all he pulled into his magnetic realm. He has left us much too soon, and will long be remembered for his love of family, kindness, generosity, warmth of heart, and his beautiful smile.

A LOVING FAMILY

Weston leaves behind a grieving family including his mother, Melanie Ellis Demaree (Tim); sisters, Dawn Ellis and Amanda Gribbons (James) and Timea Demaree and brothers, Ethan Ellis and Jimmy Demaree (Clare); his aunts and uncles, Cheryl Ellis Munoz (Bobby), Marcy Ellis Hahn (Roger), and Melissa Grey; nephews and nieces, Tyler Hoskins, Derek Hoskins, Lillian Cline, and Sophia Gribbons; close cousins, Jesse Morgan Munoz (Ashley: Alice and Bobby Munoz), Eli Munoz, Annie Munoz, Morgan Alex Hahn, and Garrett Hahn. He also leaves behind numerous close friends and extended family. He was preceded in death by his father, Donald Ellis, Jr.; his stepfather, Tim Demaree; his grandfathers, Donald Ellis Sr. and Walter Grey; his grandmothers, Marian Caldwell Ellis and Evelyn Grey, and uncles Robert Munoz and Gary Weston Ellis.

Getting a career off cruise control

ANNIE LANE
DEAR ANNIE

Dear Annie: I've been working at the same car dealership for five years, since I graduated high school. When I started, it was just a job. I thought I would do this and then figure out what I really want to do. Then I started to make some money, and I got decent at selling. A week turned into a month, which turned into a year, and here I am at 23.

I got married last year, and my wife and I now have a 6-month-old baby girl. She is the love of my life, and I wouldn't trade her for the world. But part of me regrets that I never went to college before starting a family. I don't want to be a car salesman my entire life.

I'd really like to pursue a degree and study business. I am only 23 and know that I have a long way to go, but the past five years have flown by so quickly, and I want to make sure that I am not on a path I will regret. I love my daughter and her mother. I don't hate my job, but I can't imagine doing this for the rest of my life. What should I do? — Stuck Salesman

Dear Stuck: Car salesmen get a bad rap, but really, it's not an easy job. They have to be persistent, quick-thinking and good with people. If you have the finesse to be a good car salesman, you can probably do pretty much anything you set your mind to.

Look into seeking a degree online or through a local college that offers night classes so you can continue working and supporting your family while laying the groundwork for a new career path. The U.S. News University Directory can match you to a reputable online program that meets your needs.

The skills you've honed over the past five years will take you far. With real-world experience plus a degree, you'll be firing on all cylinders.

Dear Annie: I have two healthy, beautiful kids — one boy, one girl.

My daughter is 6, and she is really into reading. She can't wait to go to bed and devours her nighttime reading material. She was reading on her own before kindergarten. She sounds out words and sits and listens and figures things out.

But my son is 4 and can't sit still. I open a book and he gets up. When it's bedtime, he has zero interest in any of the books on his bookshelf. We've tried every book there is, from Dr. Seuss to Eric Carle to Shel Silverstein to Mo Willems.

These kids have the same genes. How can one be so into books and the other want nothing to do with them? — Reading Rain-bro

Dear Reading: You're raising siblings, not clones. Of course they won't have identical aptitudes.

Although there's no definite "right" age by which all kids should be reading, it usually happens around age 6. It sounds as if your daughter was a bit of a prodigy.

As long as your son is in the healthy range of his age group and is getting a hang of the pre-reading fundamentals (such as identifying letters), he should be fine. Don't give up on trying to get him excited about books, though. Read to him for short periods of time to hold his interest. Pick stories about subjects he loves.

Your son may never be the bookworm your daughter is, but the bottom line is he will go to college knowing how to read.

After the kids have flown the coop

ANNIE LANE
DEAR ANNIE

Dear Annie: I am a 49-year-old father of twins, a boy and girl. They are 18 and will be headed for college soon, and I am starting to get pretty worried about the nest's being empty once they depart.

I love my wife. Our marriage has been rocky at times, but we've stayed together. There's been no infidelity or anything major. We've just had normal couple issues about quality time spent together and household annoyances, such as not emptying the dishwasher and leaving stubble around the sink in the bathroom.

For the past 18 years, the kids have been our focus. In a few months, that focus moves out.

I am worried about myself. These days, when I come home from work, I check in with the kids. I help with homework. I go to their basketball games. After they leave, I will have nothing to do.

I am worried about my wife, too. Her life is these kids. She cooks for them. She drives for them (which is shocking, considering they both have their driver's licenses). They are her world, and that will be gone after they leave.

Yes, I am looking forward to spending more time with my wife, but there are only so many episodes of "House of Cards" we can watch. Is there anything I can do to prepare for this departure? — Deserted Dad

Dear Deserted: Change can be a wonderful thing. It can also be terrifying, disorienting and sad. The key is to embrace it.

Your kids will no longer depend on you the way they once did, but this means you can now have a relationship with them more akin to friendship. The more mature they become the more they'll appreciate you and their mom. And they'll still need plenty of help as they navigate the world of adulthood.

You and your wife can use this stage to behave like newlyweds again. Go out on more dates. Relearn what it's like to have free time. Most importantly, talk about the transition you're both going through, as you are in a perfect position to understand and support each other. The nest isn't totally empty as long as you've got each other. (Netflix doesn't hurt.)

Tina Wyeth Baker, a descendant of artist Peyton Cooke Wyeth, was in Madison recently to view portraits painted by Wyeth — her second cousin four times removed — of Charles Shrewsbury's children in Historic Madison's Shrewsbury-Windle House.

Wyeth descendant views Shrewsbury portraits

BY BOB DEMAREE

For nearly all of Shrewsbury-Windle House's existence, two portraits of the Shrewsbury children have graced the wall of the parlor.

That's 170 years, just nine years after after the house, designed by Francis Costigan, was built.

"After all these years, it's amazing that they are still in the same place. That's very rare," said Tina Wyeth Baker, a descendant of Peyton Cooke Wyeth (also known as P.C. Wyeth), who painted the portraits that have hung in the same location since 1851. The Shrewsbury House was built in 1842 for the family of Charles Shrewsbury, a salt-barge riverboat captain, flour manufacturer and pork merchant who was also Mayor of Madison from May 1870 to April 1872.

Baker, who lives near Columbus, Ohio, is a second cousin of Wyeth — four times removed — and recently saw the Shrewsbury portraits in-person for the first time during a visit to the Shrewsbury House. "I had seen pictures of them," Baker said, noting she was thrilled to finally actually see them. She described them as "spectacular paintings," and was particularly fascinated at how well Wyeth captured the eyes of all the subjects in the paintings.

"The eyes are just wonderful," she said.

Baker began verifying data on the Wyeth and Wythe families in 2010, and in 2019 wrote a 558-page book on the descendants of Nicholas Wyeth. P.C. Wyeth's grandfather, Joshua, named the Boston Tea Party by being a participant who published the first account of that historic event.

A book, written by David Peat titled "Pioneer Painters of Indiana" explained how P.C. Wyeth was a resident of Cincinnati when he won the coveted commission to paint the children of Charles Shrewsbury.

One of the portraits includes the five sons, John, William, Lewis, Samuel and Culver, who ranged in ages from two to 12, all grouped around a sofa. The other has the daughter, Mary Louise, on the lap of her mother, Ellen, wife of Charles Shrewsbury.

Baker said her research found that after P.C. Wyeth completed the portraits, he returned to Cincinnati where his wife had died on Feb. 20, 1851. He then moved to Memphis, Tennessee, in the mid 1850s, and then to Brooklyn, New York. He died on July 15, 1862, in Barbados where he had gone in hopes of improving his health, but it did not help. He was 51 years old.

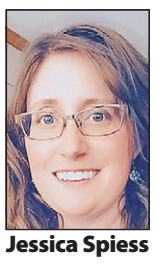
All these years later, Wyeth's work lives on through the Shrewsbury family portraits. And for Baker to see them, she said it was "such a special day."

HMI names program director

Spiess has background in park service

BY BOB DEMAREE

Jessica Spiess has been named the Director of Programs for Historic Madison Inc., replacing Rhonda Deeg, who had held the position for nearly seven years.



Jessica Spiess

"We are excited to have Jessica join the HMI team and become part of the Madison preservation program," said John Staicer, HMI President. "Jess brings a wide variety of skills and experience to our team and is hard at work on a number of public programs. She's also planning new and different ways for visitors to experience our historic district and the HMI properties."

Spiess has experience as a park ranger with the National Park Service in Montana, Minnesota and Massachusetts, with the Indiana Department of Natural Resources, and Porter County Parks. She completed her master's degree in public history in 2020 from the University of Nebraska-Kearney, and graduated with degrees in history and agricultural economics from Purdue University in 2009. Most recently, Spiess was a project manager with the Indiana Department of Transportation.

Spiess said she is "thrilled for the opportunity to utilize my skills and knowledge to help Historic Madison Inc. continue to share the history of Madison, Indiana, through education, preservation and community interactions."

As a native of Indiana, Spiess said she has "known about Madison and its rich heritage for many years. It's a dream come true to become part of this community which values its history so much."

making rescue plans in disasters," Stephen Cox, executive director of the Indiana Department of Homeland Security said.

Cox noted that because both EMA and 911 share the same building, "it makes it easy for the Jefferson County team to work in conjunction with each other," which said he said is vital when responding to disasters and emergencies. "No one mitigates a disaster by themselves," Cox said, adding the Jefferson County Public Safety Center provides the "ability to respond and provide appropriate response in disasters."

Ed Reuter, executive director of the State 911 Board, said the facility is not only an asset to Jefferson County residents but those who visit the county as tourists. "This is a beautiful city and county, and I love coming down here," Reuter said, noting the facility is "not just for the 33,000 citizens that are here" but for all the tourists and visitors who will come into the county for activities and events. "To have EMA and 911 in the same building, the response will be quicker and much more effective.

"This is a milestone for 911 and EMA," Reuter said, noting that between the facility and the people working there, residents of the community can "lay their head on a pillow at night and feel safe."

"What I see here today is remarkable," Reuter said.

County Commissioner Ron Lee looked back to his youth and recalled emergency situations and disasters that might have benefited from such a facility. He recalled three Madison Consolidated School Corporation buses that were traveling together in 1973 when the first bus collided with a 62,000-pound tractor-trailer causing five deaths and 13 injuries. "I was in the third school bus behind," said Lee.

Lee added that the next year, a tornado caused devastation throughout Jefferson County in 1974. "What we have now, we didn't have then, and this has brought us forward," said Lee.

"This is a facility we have never had here," County Council Vice Chairman Chris Shelton said, noting it will provide safety and security for local residents "for years to come."

Madison Mayor Bob Courtney emphasized that the Jefferson County Public Safety Center is vital to the city and county. "We must continue the investment (for emergency services) so they are successful when they are needed the most," he said. "These investments are always made to be sure we can handle the next emergency that happens" adding the facility "is very critical for our community."

Scott Castor of the EMA advisory board said developing the center means "Jefferson County is now equipped with a state-of-the-art facility with the technology needed in situations of emergency that will provide coordination of emergency services in the field. This building makes our county a safer place. It will help save lives in the event of emergencies."

According to Morgan, the center is also a continuation — and improvement — of all the previous hard word and dedication that has gone into developing the county's 911 system. "The reason we have what we have today is a direct result of all the efforts and time from yesterdays" he said.

With that in mind, Kaye Abplanalp was on hand to honor the memory of her father, Jim Alexander, who was instrumental in starting the 911 system in Jefferson County. Alexander was actively involved in making sure addresses were accurate so that those who called for help would be located in their emergency.

Alexander and his wife, Eleanor, both died of COVID-19 in January. They had traveled the world but always came home to Madison. Abplanalp said her father worked so hard for 911, because of how much he cared. "He loved Madison. He loved 911 and he loved working with everyone in the county," she said. "This is the only place they wanted to be. They just wanted to make it better."

WORK

then back to the incline bridge. The third phase will involve the highway each way from the Big Clifty Creek bridge to the top of Hanover Hill.

McGee anticipates that work should be done by Madison Ribberfest (Aug. 20) with the project taking a break for the festival, and then resuming for application of the liquid road sealer and striping. McGee said the hope is that all work will be finished before the Madison Chautauqua (Sept. 25).

"It is a little difficult when you have to block parking because we don't know how much they are going to get done in a day, then that product needs to sit for awhile so that it can harden," she said.

"They're milling out many of those poorly done patches and cuts in the road and putting new asphalt in. It looks really good. When that's all done they'll come back with the sealant product which will go over all the road surface," McGee said.

McGee said Street Supervisor Kenny Washer is monitoring work on site to keep track of the progress.

"This is long overdue," said Madison Mayor Bob Courtney, noting the hope is that the project will sustain the road until a $5 million grant from the Federal Highway Adminstration is available in 2026 for milling and repaving. "We have a lot of planning to do between now and then, but at least we can make some interim repairs."

"We ask for patience," said McGee. "We know it's an inconvenience to the store owners and the people who live downtown, but this is the only way to do it. They have to get in there and work."

Meanwhile, Indiana Department of Transportation maintenance crews will begin chip seal operations as early as Thursday, Aug. 5, on State Road 362 in Scott and Jefferson Counties.

Work will take place between State Road 3 and State Road 62 along the Clark County line. The work was originally scheduled for mid-May, but was moved to later in the season.

Chip seal operations typically last around three to four days per location depending upon weather. Work is completed under lane closures with flagging to prevent damage to both vehicles and the roadway. During operations, existing pavement is coated with liquid asphalt, which seals cracks and provides waterproof protection. This extends the service life of the roadway and lowers maintenance costs. Once the seal coat is complete, loose aggregate is applied and swept from the road. After a curing period, crews will return to fog seal the new driving surface and apply pavement markings.

Motorists should slow down, watch for stopped traffic, and drive distraction-free through all work zones. All work is weather-dependent and schedules are subject to change.

Olympic surprise

Finke's family is from Madison

Associated Press

USA swimmer Bobby Finke on the victory podium Sunday receiving his second gold medal of the 2020 Tokyo Olympics. Finke, whose family is from Madison, won the 1,500 meters Sunday to go with a gold medal in the 800 meters on Thursday.

TOKYO — Bobby Finke will be the first to concede he had modest goals for the Tokyo Olympics.

He was thrilled merely to make the U.S. team in a couple of grueling freestyle events. He couldn't really envision winning a medal

Now, he's got a couple of golds.

Finke, the son of former Jefferson County Prosecutor Joe and Jeanne (Williams) Finke, both Madison graduates who now live in Clearwater, Florida, where Bobby grew up, capped off his stunning emergence as the world's greatest male distance swimmer by winning the 1,500-meter freestyle Sunday, turning on his trademark finishing kick to leave the field in his wake.

He had used the very same strategy to win the 800 free, a new men's event at these games.

"I came in not really expecting to get a medal or anything — and I come out of it with two golds," said Finke, sounding as amazed as anyone.

Finke's victory signaled a resurgence of distance swimming for the U.S. men, who had not won the 1,500 free since Mike O'Brien's victory at the 1984 Los Angeles Olympics.

In the 37 years since then, the Americans had been largely excluded from the medal podium in pool racing's longest event, limited to a couple of silvers and a single bronze.

More of the same was expected in Tokyo, but Finke peaked at just the right time. As much as anyone, he took advantage of the games being delayed a year because of the coronavirus pandemic.

Finke began shaving off huge chunks of time, featuring a finishing kick that no one could match.

In the 800, he was fourth at the final turn but stormed past everyone to capture the gold.

He used a similar strategy in the 1,500, lingering close to the lead throughout the 30-lap race before revving into another gear at the end.

"I was confident in my ability to come home," Finke said.

He covered the final 50 in a stunning 25.78 seconds — a full second faster than silver medalist Mykhailo Romanchuk of Ukraine and nearly 2 seconds ahead of bronze medalist Florian Wellbrock of Germany.

"I was basically just trying to stay with Florian and Romanchuk throughout the whole race and I knew from the 800 I could switch gears," said Finke, whose winning time was 14 minutes, 39.65 seconds. "I just tried to do my best and start sprinting."

Wellbrock had hoped to build a bigger lead on Finke early in the race.

The German knew he couldn't catch him at the end.

"His last 50 is much faster than my 50, so I tried to hold the speed at a high level," Wellbrock said. "It didn't work. He did a really good job on the last meters."

Finke seemed a bit overwhelmed by his sudden fame.

"Honestly it doesn't seem too real," he said. "I came in not expecting to medal and just do my best to make the finals. To come out with two golds, it means the world to me and my family and my teammates."

The 21-year-old Finke, an NCAA champion at Florida, can't wait to get back to his home. He'll hug his family and be reunited with a furry friend.

"I am looking forward to taking my dog Brewster and walking him around," Finke said. "I haven't had time to do that since Christmas."

Finally, he can slow down.

Southwestern AD Scroggins making the most of gig as a pro wrestler

BY DAVID CAMPBELL

Most people know Tom Scroggins as the longtime athletic director at Southwestern High School and former coach. But for a small collection of fans, Scroggins is actually "The Crusader" Tommy Cash, part of the tag-team duo The Knights of the Squared Circle at Madison-based Supreme Wrestling.

The dual life suits Scroggins well and while he's not as nimble and quick as he was in his younger days, he's still having a blast.

"Somebody asked me one time if I play golf. I said no, I go pro wrestling," Scroggins said with a smile.

Scroggins spends most of his summers with Supreme Wrestling, getting a chance to climb into the ring and take on opponents in matches throughout the region. Last week Scroggins got to compete on his home turf, hosting Supreme Wrestling for a pair of matches at Southwestern's Laura Cash Boldery Gymnasium.

Scroggins didn't get a chance to go on until late but he and tag-team partner, Rob Royale, put on a show, battling the Black Lung Society to a draw after both were counted out for being out of the ring.

The tag-team battle between the Knights and the Society was just part of a massive card put on by Supreme Wrestling, which featured 12 matches over three hours. Gaston LaRue pinned Jordan Dye to retain the Supreme Light Heavyweight title to open the night and the "Gatekeeper" Kash Jackson defeated Angus Barnett and Leon Elliot in a Triple Threat match to retain the Supreme Heavyweight title to close the night.

In between, bouts were waged in a variety of ways. Cameron Saturn outlasted six other wrestlers to win a 20-minute scramble match to claim the Central States Heavyweight title, and "Big Time" Josh Lewis pinned "Hot Stuff" Jayden Jett to win the Supreme Mid-America Heavyweight crown.

Wednesday's match also served as a fundraiser for the American Foundation for the Prevention of Suicide and nearly $1,000 was raised for that cause.

"This is something that is important to me," Scroggins said of suicide prevention. "We're going through a tough time in this country and not a lot of people have the proper outlet that they need. Hopefully, we can get them to realize that they are not alone."

Bailey McRoberts (left) puts Arie Alexander into a hold during Supreme Wrestling's event at Southwestern High School on Wednesday.

Tom Scroggins, known as The Crusader Tommy Cash, and Bob Coots, known as Superbeast Rob Royale, joined forces as the Knights of the Square Circle tag team. Both are former high school baseball coaches — Scroggins at Southwestern and Coots at Carroll County.

Scroggins hooked up with Supreme Wrestling through his friendship with Shawn Sands, who wrestles under the name Eric Draven. Originally, Scroggins just helped Supreme by giving them a place to compete but as he got more involved, he's spent more time between the ropes.

Today, Scroggins wrestles about a dozen times a year, mostly in the summer when school is out of session. As a result, he trains only enough to be able to put on a show.

"I'll get in there and workout and get myself ready, but I'm not going off the top rope or anything. I'm too old and worn for that now," the 39-year-old Scroggins said with a laugh. "But there are guys and girls in that lockerroom that work out twice a week and what they do is amazing. I take my hats off to them."

Supreme Wrestling puts on shows every Saturday night at the Supreme Arena, 2520 Lanier Drive, Madison. Matches begin at 7:30 p.m. and all tickets are $8.

Schrock homers, with 5 hits filling in for red-hot Votto

BY CHARLES O'BRIEN
ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK — Reds rookie Max Schrock did his best Joey Votto imitation.

Schrock went 5 for 5 with a home run while giving the All-Star a break, leading fellow newcomer Vladimir Gutierrez and Cincinnati over the New York Mets 7-1 Sunday.

Max Schrock

Making his first major league start at first base, the 26-year-old Schrock — who's also made a relief pitching appearance this year — filled in admirably for the Reds star. Schrock scored three runs and drove in two.

"I was just going up there trying to see good pitches, that was about it," Schrock said.

Votto got a rest from manager David Bell a day after his seven-game home run streak came to an end. That allowed the 37-year old slugger to have consecutive off days before the Reds' series opener with Minnesota on Tuesday.

"It worked out perfectly," Bell said.

Tyler Stephenson and Kyle Farmer each drove in runs for the Reds, who matched a season high by moving six games over .500.

"Maybe I should go play first on Tuesday," Farmer joked. "Anybody who is playing first is just killing it!"

In his second game with his new team, Javier Baez went hitless in four at-bats for the NL East-leading Mets, who are 8-9 since the All-Star break.

Gutierrez (6-3) allowed three hits in seven innings. His only blemish was a sixth-inning home run to Jeff McNeil.

"I'm glad that I am with this ball club right now and given the opportunity to get this team to win games," Gutierrez said through an interpreter.

The rookie right-hander struck out four and didn't allow a hit until Kevin Pillar's two-out single in the fifth. Gutierrez also drew a bases-loaded walk in the sixth for his first major league RBI.

"The kid's got good stuff," New York manager Luis Rojas said.

Marcus Stroman (7-10) gave up Schrock's solo homer in the fourth, then ran into trouble in the sixth.

Jesse Winker hit a leadoff double and Farmer tripled to center field, just beyond the reach of a diving Pillar. Stephenson followed with a sacrifice fly.

Stroman appeared to wiggle out of trouble before walking Tyler Naquin on a wild pitch that allowed Schrock, who had singled, to reach third. Miguel Castro relieved and walked consecutive hitters to force in a run.

TRAINER'S ROOM

Reds: Bell was asked pregame if he would have held out Votto if the star slugger's eighth-inning drive Saturday night that hit off the padding atop the right-field wall was a foot higher. The Cincinnati skipper gave a hearty laugh before ending his pregame news conference without commenting. Votto fell one game — and just a few inches — shy of matching the MLB record of home runs in eight straight games.

Mets: OF Brandon Nimmo (hamstring) was held out of the starting lineup for the second straight game. He popped out as a pinch-hitter in the sixth … INF Luis Guillorme was placed on the 10-day injured list with a left hamstring strain.

NCAA board calls convention to plot course for governing sports

BY RALPH D. RUSSO
AP COLLEGE SPORTS WRITER

The NCAA Board of Governors on Friday called for a constitutional convention in November, the first step toward launching dramatic reform in how the sprawling, multibillion-dollar enterprise of college sports is governed for years to come.

In the wake of a stinging loss in the Supreme Court and radical changes to the way athletes can be compensated — and with College Football Playoff expansion and major conference realignment already in motion — the NCAA said it wants to "reimagine" how it manages the needs of its more than 450,000 athletes.

"The goal is to make sure that we can align authority and responsibilities, get that right between campuses and the conferences and the national level," NCAA President Mark Emmert said in a brief teleconference with reporters.

That begins with examining the NCAA's very foundation, a six-article constitution that lays out the association's purpose, principles and general policies. Action on proposed changes is expected to be taken at the NCAA's January convention.

"It's evident we're going take a hard look at the structure and governance of the association and have a discussion about values and a discussion of goals," said Mid-American Conference Commissioner Jon Steinbrecher, a member of the Division I Council. "We've talked about modernization of the rules, well, perhaps its time to modernize the association. So here we go."

Why now?

"I think it's really the shifting legal environment, the economic environment, the political environment, all of that, that creates this opportunity in a lot of ways to stop and erase the blackboard and draw a new chart again," Emmert said. "And that's a really, really powerful opportunity that can't be wasted."

A 22-person Constitution Review Committee with university presidents, conference commissioners, athletics directors and students from the more than 1,100 member schools in Divisions I, II and III will be created to redraft the constitution.

The committee will be appointed in August after each division nominates candidates.

"As the national landscape changes, college sports must also quickly adapt to become more responsive to the needs of college athletes and current member schools," said Jack DeGioia, chair of the Board of Governors and president of Georgetown.

The NCAA does not have a track record of acting swiftly and its rulebooks have been ridiculed for years as being overly dense. Still, Steinbrecher called the timeline laid out by the board — six months from creation of committee to acting on its proposals — "aggressive."

"That would be, by any measure for any organization, exceptionally quick work," he said. "By the same token we're not a dictatorship or an autocracy. We're an association of member institutions. There needs to be a collective sense of urgency."

Two weeks ago, Emmert made headlines when he said it was time to consider a decentralized and deregulated version of college sports that shifted power to conferences and campuses and away from the NCAA. The idea is a sea change for an organization formed 115 years ago that is part of the bedrock of collegiate athletics.

Some conference commissioners, most notably Greg Sankey of the Southeastern Conference, followed with similar statements and said they were ready to begin the process of taking on those tasks.

The willingness to discuss an overhaul of the NCAA comes about a month after the Supreme Court ruled against the organization in what was seen as a bombshell unanimous decision, upholding a lower court ruling in an antitrust case related to caps on education-related compensation.

The Supreme Court also threw open the door for more legal challenges to the NCAA's rules. Legal experts and college sports observers immediately wondered if the NCAA would look at other approaches to governing college sports.

"I worry a lot about intercollegiate athletics, about whether it's a sustainable proposition given some of the things that are happening," said former University of Nebraska Chancellor Harvey Perlman, who was a member of the NCAA Board of Directors and chairman of the BCS during his time leading the school. "The NCAA seems to be withdrawing from the field."

Earlier this month, the NCAA lifted its long ban on college athletes earning money for endorsement and sponsorship deals. Athletes are already cashing in on their names, images and likenesses, but the NCAA is still hoping federal legislation will produce a national standard for all schools.

Some lawmakers want to go beyond NIL and reshape college sports more broadly through oversight and regulation.

"The schools need to come together and create an organizational structure and define the way the make governance decisions and what those processes are going to be quite independent of all of the external dynamics that are out there. Whether it's political or legal or economic," Emmert said. "They need to consider all of those things, But they need to decide what makes sense and how they can best oversee college sports."

Griffey Jr. named to HOF board

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

COOPERSTOWN, N.Y. — Former Cincinnati Red Ken Griffey Jr.an fellow Hall of Famers Craig Biggio and Tom Glavine have been elected to the 17-member board of directors for the National Baseball Hall of Fame and Museum.

Chairman Jane Forbes Clark made the announcement last week.

"They have all demonstrated their continuing commitment to baseball and to this institution," Clark said in a statement. "Their vision will help guide the Museum toward the future."

Griffey, who hit 630 home runs over 22 seasons with the Mariners, Reds and White Sox, was elected to the Hall of Fame in 2016. Biggio was elected in 2015 after a 20-year career spent entirely with the Astros and is member of the 3,000-hit club. Glavine, a two-time Cy Young Award winner who won 305 games for the Braves and Mets during 22 big league seasons, was elected in 2014.

Pacers add depth by drafting Oregon's Duarte 13th

BY MICHAEL MAROT
ASSOCIATED PRESS

INDIANAPOLIS — First, the Indiana Pacers played it safe. Then they took a big swing Thursday night.

They will soon find out if they hit a home run on draft night 2021.

After selecting the oldest player in the draft, 24-year-old shooting guard Chris Duarte of Oregon with the No. 13 overall pick, Pacers president of basketball operations Kevin Pritchard acquired the rights to 6-foot-11 center Isaiah Jackson after Washington selected the Kentucky star at No. 22.

"Chris is someone who's really grown the last two years at Oregon. I think he's got very good versatility, great work ethic, great toughness, got a great story to get to where he's at tonight," Pacers general manager Chad Buchanan said. "We think he (Jackson) has a bright future."

Details of the trade were not immediately available, though The Athletic reported Indiana dealt backup point guard Aaron Holiday and the 31st pick, acquired earlier from the Milwaukee Bucks. Washington acquired the 22nd pick from the Los Angeles Lakers as part of the Russell Westbrook deal.

While Duarte and Jackson are both expected to come off the bench as the Pacers try to make it back to the playoffs, they come from vastly different backgrounds.

Duarte was born in Montreal and moved to the Dominican Republic before heading to rural New York for his final two high school seasons.

Initially, he committed to Western Kentucky but instead wound up starring for two seasons at Northwest Florida State, where he was chosen the National Junior College Athletic Association national player of the year before landing with the Ducks.

"I'm just grateful for those people who helped me to get here, my coach, every coach I played for," Duarte said. "I'm just grateful for those people and I'm just really excited and happy."

The Pacers liked his story — and his experience, thinking he could make an immediate impact on a veteran team that already has all five starters under contract for next season.

At 6-foot-6, 190 pounds, Duarte could play a key role in getting Indiana back into the playoffs after missing the postseason for the first time in six years last season.

Duarte averaged 17.1 points, 4.6 rebounds, 2.7 assists and 1.9 steals while shooting 53.2% from the field and 42.4% on 3-pointers in his second and final season at Orgon. He was a third-team All-American selections and earned first team All-Pac-12 honors as well as being selected to the league's all-defensive team. He also won the Jerry West Award as Division I's top shooting guard.

Duarte sensed the Pacers were interested immediately following a workout in Indianapolis.

"I knew I was going to go from nine to 15," he said. "I went to Indiana and had a great, great workout. I met with people in the front office and we really connected well. I met with the coach, we went out to eat. When I left Indiana, I left confident in myself. I knew there was a high chance they were going to take me."

Jackson, meanwhile, played just one season at Kentucky and emerged as one of the nation's top shot-blockers. He averaged 8.4 points, 6.6 rebounds and 2.6 blocks in his only college season. At one point, it was thought he might be a lottery pick.

So when the Pacers figured out how to get him, they pounced.

"He's got a really good feel for the game for a guy who played center and is known as a great athlete," new coach Rick Carlisle said. "He has great speed but he passes and really sees things. I think we need to add athleticism to this roster. He's a legit shot-blocker as I mentioned, he's another guy that brings another unique element and that is a rolling lob threat at the rim."

Carlisle is Indiana's third coach in three seasons. Nate McMillan was fired in August 2020 after the Pacers endured their third first-round sweep in four years.

Pritchard then hired Nate Bjorkgren in October only to let him go in June following a tumultuous season that included reports of internal strife and a public spat between assistant coach Greg Foster and backup center Goga Bitadze, Indiana's first-round pick in 2019.

Pritchard rehired the former Dallas Mavericks coach last month, and Duarte sounds eager to get to work.

Wentz injury forces Colts into backup plan at quarterback

BY MICHAEL MAROT
ASSOCIATED PRESS

WESTFIELD — The Indianapolis Colts thought a trade for Carson Wentz would be their long-term answer at quarterback.

Four days into training camp, they're already working on a backup plan.

Just one day after the team announced Wentz would be out indefinitely with a foot injury, the Colts signed veteran backup Brett Hundley and started splitting snaps between their newest player and three quarterbacks who have never thrown an NFL pass.

"It's definitely different," Jacob Eason said after lining up with the starters for the second straight day. "It's good for me to get the reps, to get in and out of the huddle and all of that stuff. It's definitely different from last year."

Carson Wentz

It's also not the way Indianapolis envisioned wrapping up its first week of workouts on the city's northern side.

Eason, a fourth-round draft pick in 2020, spent last season behind durable veteran Philip Rivers and backup Jacoby Brissett. He never played during the regular season and after the preseason was canceled because of the COVID-19 pandemic, Eason never even made a game-day appearance.

Now, suddenly, the former University of Washington star is the most knowledgeable quarterback in the room.

The other quarterbacks on the roster are Sam Ehlinger, the former Texas star who was drafted in the sixth-round in April; Jalen Morton, an undrafted rookie from Prairie View A&M who failed to make an NFL roster in 2020; and Hundley, who intends to spend these next few days cramming.

"Black coffee, lots of tea and just try to pick up this offense," Hundley said. "It's all just figuring it out."

At least Hundley has some experience.

He's played in 18 NFL games, starting nine, since the Green Bay Packers took him in the fifth round of the 2015 draft. Hundley has completed 199 of 337 passes for 1,902 yards with nine touchdowns and 13 interceptions while adding 46 carries for 309 yards and two touchdowns.

Hundley has been here before — making stops in Arizona and Seattle after leaving Green Bay — and said he was planning to join the Colts before Wentz was injured Thursday..

For Eason, Ehlinger and Morton, this is all new.

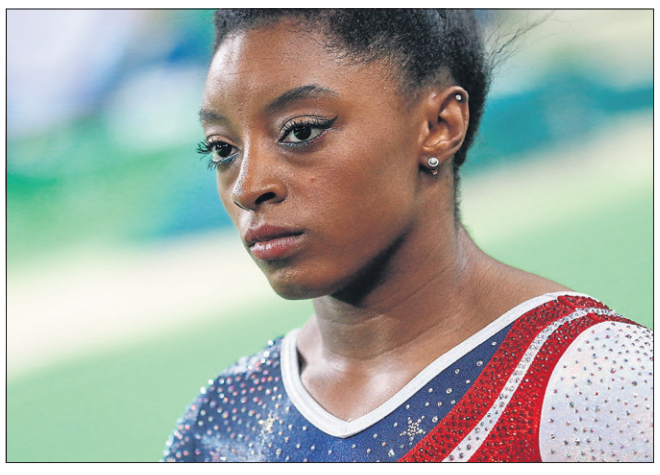
The strong-armed Eason inherited the starter's duties, at least temporarily, since Wentz missed the final practice period Thursday. He has thrown three interceptions in team drills over the past two days.

"I'm just getting my feet, getting back in the swing of things," Eason said. "It's seeing the defenses and feeling more and more comfortable every day."

It's unclear how long Eason might have to hold down the job — or whether the Colts would make another move.

American gymnast Biles to return for balance beam finals

BY WILL GRAVES
ASSOCIATED PRESS



Former Olympic gymnastics champion Simone Biles will return to competition at the 2020 Tokyo Olympics today when she competes in the balance beam after removing herself from the USA team final on July 27 after a shaky performance on vault. Biles later confirmed that she was dealing with issues surrounding air awareness, referred to as "the twisties" in her sport.
Handout

TOKYO — Simone Biles is back.

The 2016 Olympic gymnastics champion will return to competition in the balance beam final on Tuesday, a little over a week after stepping away from the meet to focus on her mental health.

"We are so excited to confirm that you will see two U.S. athletes in the balance beam final tomorrow — Suni Lee AND Simone Biles!! Can't wait to watch you both!" USA Gymnastics said in a statement.

The 24-year-old Biles won bronze on beam in Rio de Janeiro five years ago and qualified for the eight-woman final at the Ariake Gymnastics Centre on the first weekend of the Games.

She removed herself from the team final on July 27 after a shaky performance on vault during the first rotation. She watched from the sidelines as her three American teammates completed the meet without her; the U.S. took silver behind the team known as the Russian Olympic Committee.

The six-time Olympic medalist later said she was dealing with issues surrounding air awareness, referred to as "the twisties" in her sport.

Biles qualified for all five individual event finals but took herself out of four of them: the all-around, vault, floor exercise and uneven bars. Lee earned the gold in the all-around, becoming the fifth straight American to claim the sport's marquee title.

Considered to be the greatest gymnast of all-time and the unquestioned face of the U.S. Olympic movement when she arrived in Japan, Biles continued to train and be evaluated daily by the USA Gymnastics staff after opting out of multiple finals. She has also been a fixture in the stands supporting Lee, MyKayla Skinner and Jade Carey while they competed in the event finals.

She went into extensive detail about "the twisties" last week, explaining she lost the confidence of knowing what her body was going to do in midair. It's not the first time Biles dealt with the problem, though she did say the issues followed her to both uneven bars and beam. Previous bouts with the phenomenon were limited to floor exercise and vault, where more twisting elements are required.

Finishing her second Olympics — and perhaps her career — on balance beam is poetic justice of sorts for Biles. She got bronze in Rio despite grabbing the 4-inch piece of wood that's 4 feet off the ground when she almost slipped mid-routine. It was her fifth medal at the Games. The other four were gold.

Biles has called the bronze the medal she earned in Brazil that she's proudest of, and she's taken to task those who called it a disappointment, using it as proof to the double standard she believes follows her whenever she competes.

Athletes from all over — both at the Olympics and elsewhere — have rallied around her over the last week, praising her courage for speaking up about the importance of mental health.

It's USA vs. Spain in Olympic men's quarters

BY TIM REYNOLDS
AP BASKETBALL WRITER

SAITAMA, Japan — The U.S. and Spain played for Olympic gold in 2008 and 2012, then in the semifinals in 2016.

And at the Tokyo Games, the top teams in the FIBA world rankings will meet again — just earlier than has been the norm.

The three-time reigning Olympic champion Americans will face reigning World Cup champion Spain in the quarterfinals of the men's tournament at the Tokyo Games on Tuesday, a matchup of teams that finished second in their respective groups at the Olympics.

Spain fell outside of the seeded pool, and knew it had exposed itself to a potential matchup with the U.S., by losing the group-play finale to Slovenia on Sunday. And about an hour later, when FIBA held the Olympic draw, the matchup was set.

"If you're going to get that gold medal, you're going to beat everybody," Spain center Marc Gasol said. "At that point, it doesn't matter, the order."

The U.S. is 16-2 against Spain in Olympic or World Cup competition — yet recent matchups haven't exactly been runaways. The Americans won 82-76 in the 2016 Olympic semifinals, 107-100 in the 2012 gold-medal game at London, and 118-107 in the gold-medal matchup at Beijing in 2008.

"This Olympics is just going to get better as far as basketball is concerned, because the teams are all pretty passionate and very talented and have a lot of individual players that people will enjoy on TV," U.S. coach Gregg Popovich said.

The other quarterfinals: Group A winner France (3-0) will face Italy (2-1, second place in Group B), Group B winner Australia (3-0) plays Argentina (1-2, third place in Group C), and Group C winner Slovenia (3-0) drew a matchup with Germany (1-2, second place in Group B).

FIBA later announced that Slovenia-Germany is the first game Tuesday (10 a.m. locally, 9 p.m. Monday in Eastern time), followed by the U.S.-Spain game (1:40 p.m. locally, 12:40 a.m. Eastern), Italy-France (5:20 p.m. locally, 4:20 a.m. Eastern) and Australia-Argentina (9 p.m. locally, 8 a.m. Eastern).

Australia guard Joe Ingles said nobody would be thrilled about a 10 a.m. start.

"You have no choice, so you've got to figure out a way to get up and get going, and this opportunity we've got, I think our guys will be ready for 10 a.m. or 9 p.m., whichever part of the day it is," Ingles said.

The Italy-France winner will play the Slovenia-Germany winner in one semifinal, and the U.S.-Spain winner plays the Australia-Argentina winner in the other. The quarterfinals are win-or-go-home; a victory means teams are assured of two more games — the semifinals followed by a gold- or bronze-medal contest — before leaving Tokyo.

"Everybody knows that there are no easy opponents, especially USA, Australia, France, those kind of teams," Slovenia guard Zoran Dragic said. "That's why everybody wanted to be first in their group."

The U.S., which lost to France in the Olympic opener, got into the seeded pot of the draw by finishing as the top second-place team. That meant it couldn't face any of the group winners in the quarterfinals, but also had to play another second-place finisher — in this case, either Italy or Spain.

NOTICE OF REAL PROPERTY
TAX SALE
Jefferson County Indiana
Beginning 10:00 AM Local Time,
September 8, 2021
Courthouse

Jefferson County

Pursuant to the laws of the Indiana General Assembly, notice is hereby given that the following described property is listed for sale for delinquent taxes and/or special assessments. The county auditor and county treasurer will apply on or after 08/20/2021 for a court judgment against the tracts or real property for an amount that is not less than the amount set out below and for an order to sell the tracts or real property at public auction to the highest bidder, subject to the right of redemption. Any defense to the application for judgment must be filed with the Jefferson County Circuit Court and served on the county auditor and treasurer before 08/20/2021. The court will set a date for a hearing at least seven (7) days before the advertised date of sale and the court will determine any defenses to the application for judgment at the hearing. The county auditor and the county treasurer are entitled to receive all pleadings, motions, petitions, and other filings related to the defense to the application for judgment.

Such sale will be held on 09/08/2021 at the Courthouse and that sale will continue until all tracts and real property have been offered for sale. At the discretion of local officials, the tax sale may switch to an online format. If those measures are taking place, the public auction will be conducted as an electronic sale under IC 6-1.1-24-2(b)10 at www.zeusauction.com commencing on the same date / time listed above. All location updates will be posted at www.sriservices.com prior to the tax sale.

Property will not be sold for an amount which is less than the sum of:

(A) the delinquent taxes and special assessments on each tract or item of real property; and
(B) the taxes and special assessments on the real property that are due and payable in the year of the sale, whether or not they are delinquent; and
(C) all penalties due on the delinquencies, and
(D) an amount prescribed by the county auditor that equals the sum of:
(1) twenty-five dollars ($25) for postage and publication costs; and
(2) any other costs incurred by the county that are directly attributable to the tax sale; and
(E) any unpaid costs due under IC 6-1.1-24-2(c) from a prior tax sale.

No property listed below shall be sold if, at any time before the sale, the Total Amount for Judgment is paid in full. If the real property is sold in the tax sale, the amount required to redeem such property will be 110% of the minimum bid for which the tract or real property was offered at the time of sale, if redeemed not more than six (6) months after the date of sale, or 115% of the minimum bid for which the tract or real property was offered at the time of sale, if redeemed more than six (6) months after the date of sale, plus the amount by which the purchase price exceeds the minimum bid on the real property plus five percent (5%) per annum interest on the amount by which the purchase price exceeds the minimum bid on the property. All taxes and special assessments upon the property paid by the purchaser subsequent to the sale, plus five percent (5%) per annum interest on those taxes and special assessments, will also be required to be paid to redeem such property.

In addition, IC 6-1.1-25-2 (e) states the total amount required for redemption may include the following costs incurred and paid by the purchaser or the purchaser's assignee or the county before redemption: (1) The attorney's fees and cost of giving notice under IC 6-1.1-25-4.5; (2) The costs of title search or examining and update the abstract of title for the tract or item of real property. The period of redemption shall expire on Thursday, September 08, 2022 for certificates sold in the tax sale. For certificates struck to the county, the period of redemption may expire Thursday, January 06, 2022.

If the tract or item of real property is sold for an amount more than the minimum bid and the property is not redeemed, the owner of record of the property who is divested of ownership at the time the tax deed is issued may have a right to the tax sale surplus.

The Auditor and Treasurer specifically reserve the right to withhold from the sale any parcel which has been listed in error, or which otherwise becomes ineligible for sale either prior to 09/08/2021 or during the duration of the sale.

This notice of real property tax sale, and the tax sale itself are undertaken and will be conducted pursuant to the requirements of the laws of the State of Indiana which regulate the sale of land for delinquent taxes, pursuant to I.C. 6-1.1-24-1 et seq.

The County does not warrant the accuracy of the street address or common description of the property, and a misstatement in the key number or street address does not invalidate an otherwise valid sale.

Minimum bid amounts are prescribed by law and are subject to change prior to the auction date.

Pursuant to IC 6-1.1-24-3(e), property descriptions may be omitted for properties appearing on the certified list in consecutive years. A complete property list may be obtained at www.sriservices.com or in an alternative form upon request.
